

Blue Coat School Rule	Does it keep any of the United Nations Rights of the Child?	Does it break any of the United Nations Rights of the Child?
After morning prayers one third part of the working children shall immediately be taught by the master in school for an hour and a half and then all the children shall go to breakfast for half an hour. After breakfast, another third part of those children shall learn for an hour and half and the remaining part be taught in like manner so there will be constantly two third parts at work and one at school.
As of the children's learning they shall be taught to read every day, to spell two days in the week, and their religious education two other days weekly.
That during the Governors' meeting they discuss of no other business but what relates to the School.
The matron shall take care that the provisions be duly distributed to the children according to the bill of fare appointed by the Governors.
She shall have the immediate care of all the children's dinners.

The teachers shall take care of the children in their respective work and make sure they daily perform their several tasks and make good work.
The parents of the Poor Children in the Hospital shall not be admitted to visit their children in their house except Sunday evening, unless in case of Sickness.
The children shall walk decently two by two to Church every Sunday and the Holy Days appointed them with their master, nurses and monitors shall be appointed to inspect their behaviour.
To get admitted to the school the child must be from the parish of Liverpool and be able to produce a certificate that they are 7 years of age and bring with them their belongings on their first day.  Parents of such children shall then agree that the Governors will be able to make all the decisions about their child's future.
When any children are bound apprentices they shall be allowed each a new suit different from the Hospital apparel and the Hospital clothes to be reserved for those children who fill their vacancy.

Children who do not work be constantly in the school during the school hours.
The Governors to meet at the Hospital every Tuesday evening at 5 o'clock and to stay no longer than nine.
That at every meeting they begin and end with a collection of donations and the Lord's Prayer.		