The 2012 Lowry Lounge at the Bluecoat

Lunch Break (not provided) - refreshments available from the Bluecoat	Part 1 THE	WALK assemble at the Bluecoat
LUNCH BREAK (not provided) – refreshments available from the Bluecoat's Espresso or Bistro   Part 2 THE LOUNGE in the performance space upstairs at the Bluecoat	11am-1pm		heading to the Mersey, the writer's 'risk-laden escape route from lunacy into uncertainty'
Lowry musical landscape presented by Bryan Biggs	1-2pm	LUNCH BREAK (not provided) – refreshments available from the Bluecoat's Espresso or Bistro
Welcome & introduction   Mark Goodall introduces the latest edition of the journal of all things Lowry – copies available	Part 2 THE	LOUNGE in the performance space upstairs at the l	Bluecoat
Launch of The Firminist  Mark Goodall introduces the latest edition of the journal of all things Lowry – copies available  From Allerton to Dollarton  Audio visual presentation by Bryan Biggs and Cathy Butterworth, inspired by their retip to Vancouver in search of Lowry  Reading/presentation by Robert Sheppard, who has been searching for hints of Lowry the late novels of David Markson (1927-2010), who got to know Lowry while writing at the nas become so captivated by these anti-novels  The Sinister Quarter: Malcolm Lowry and Ivan Chtcheglov  Talk by Mark Goodall on how Lowry's writing influenced the radical post-war Paris sost that spawned Situationism, focusing on Ivan Chtcheglov, whose tragic life echoed Lowr own. Followed by short film  3.40-3.55pm  BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro  Lowry and the Norse Resonance  Illustrated talk by Annick Drösdal-Levillain exploring Lowry's Nordic connection, base bio-bibliographical miscellanea  Spoken word performance by Helen Tookey and Cathy Butterworth, drawing on Low 'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano, using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Toast to Lowry  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluin the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera	1.30pm	Doors open	Lowry musical landscape presented by Bryan Biggs
From Allerton to Dollarton  Audio visual presentation by Bryan Biggs and Cathy Butterworth, inspired by their recipit to Vancouver in search of Lowry  Reading/presentation by Robert Sheppard, who has been searching for hints of Lowry the late novels of David Markson (1927-2010), who got to know Lowry while writing at the on Under The Volcano. He found some, will read some of them, and will attempt to say he has become so captivated by these anti-novels  Talk by Mark Goodall on how Lowry's writing influenced the radical post-war Paris soc that spawned Situationism, focusing on Ivan Chtcheglov, whose tragic life echoed Lowr own. Followed by short film  3.40-3.55pm  BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro  4pm  Lowry and the Norse Resonance    "Darling, why did I leave? Why did you let me?"   Spoken word performance by Helen Tookey and Cathy Butterworth, drawing on Low 'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano, using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Toast to Lowry  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluin the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films lik	2pm	Welcome & introduction trip to Vancouver in search of Lowry    David Markson & Lowry		Launch of The Firminist	available
the late novels of David Markson (1927-2010), who got to know Lowry while writing a the on Under The Volcano. He found some, will read some of them, and will attempt to say he has become so captivated by these anti-novels  The Sinister Quarter: Malcolm Lowry and Ivan Chtcheglov  Talk by Mark Goodall on how Lowry's writing influenced the radical post-war Paris soc that spawned Situationism, focusing on Ivan Chtcheglov, whose tragic life echoed Lowr own. Followed by short film  3.40-3.55pm  BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro  Lowry and the Norse Resonance  Illustrated talk by Annick Drösdal-Levillain exploring Lowry's Nordic connection, base bio-bibliographical miscellanea  Spoken word performance by Helen Tookey and Cathy Butterworth, drawing on Low 'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano, using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Toast to Lowry  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluin the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera.		From Allerton to Dollarton	Audio visual presentation by Bryan Biggs and Cathy Butterworth , inspired by their recent trip to Vancouver in search of Lowry
The Sinister Quarter: Malcolm Lowry and Ivan Chtcheglov  3.40-3.55pm  BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro  Lowry and the Norse Resonance  "Darling, why did I leave? Why did you let me?"  Talk by Mark Goodall on how Lowry's writing influenced the radical post-war Paris see that spawned Situationism, focusing on Ivan Chtcheglov, whose tragic life echoed Lowr own. Followed by short film  Illustrated talk by Annick Drösdal-Levillain exploring Lowry's Nordic connection, base bio-bibliographical miscellanea  Spoken word performance by Helen Tookey and Cathy Butterworth, drawing on Low 'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano, using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Toast to Lowry  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluin the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera		David Markson & Lowry	the late novels of David Markson (1927-2010), who got to know Lowry while writing a thesis on Under The Volcano . He found some, will read some of them, and will attempt to say why he has become so captivated by these anti-novels
3.40-3.55pm BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro  4pm Lowry and the Norse Resonance  "Darling, why did I leave? Why did you let me?"  "Darling, why did I leave? Why did you let me?"  Toast to Lowry  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro  Illustrated talk by Annick Drösdal-Levillain exploring Lowry's Nordic connection, base bio-bibliographical miscellanea  Spoken word performance by Helen Tookey and Cathy Butterworth, drawing on Low 'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano, using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluin the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera			that spawned Situationism, focusing on Ivan Chtcheglov, whose tragic life echoed Lowry's
Lowry and the Norse Resonance  Illustrated talk by Annick Drösdal-Levillain exploring Lowry's Nordic connection, base bio-bibliographical miscellanea  "Darling, why did I leave? Why did you let me?"  Spoken word performance by Helen Tookey and Cathy Butterworth, drawing on Low 'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano, using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Toast to Lowry  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was inclu in the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera.	3.40-3.55pm	m BREAK Refreshments available from Espresso or Bistro
'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano , using postcards, written from the heart, left over a few weeks by visitors to the Bluecoat.  Toast to Lowry  Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluin the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera		Lowry and the Norse Resonance	bio-bibliographical miscellanea
Film: Dziga Vertov's Man With A Movie Camera (1929)  Introduced by Colin Dilnot, this extraordinary piece of filmmaking is a montage of urba Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was incluing the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Camera		"Darling, why did I leave? Why did you let me?"	'lost correspondence' in Under the Volcano , using postcards, written from the heart, left
(1929)  Russian life showing people at work and at play, and the machines that keep the city go Vertov's first full-length film, it uses a variety of cinematic techniques - dissolves, split screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was inclu in the 1929-30 Cambridge Film Guild season attended by Lowry, who later imbued his writing with a literary version of montage taken from films like Man With A Movie Came .		Toast to Lowry
6pm Finish			screen, slow motion and freeze-frames - to create an exhilarating montage. It was included
	6pm	Finish		