DaDaFest International 2014:

Art of the Lived Experiment

Exhibition and festival events

Sept Oct Nov

Autumn at the Bluecoat.

The galleries continue to showcase James McNeill Whistler as part of the Liverpool Biennial 2014: A Needle Walks into a Haystack, followed by DaDaFest International 2014: Art of the Lived Experiment.

We are delighted to introduce After Hours in the Gallery, until 8pm every fourth Thursday of the month. After Hours in the Gallery is part of our commitment to make the best artistic work accessible to everyone, enabling visitors to not only enjoy the shows 7 days a week from 10am-6pm, but also into some evenings.

As part of this commitment we are extending our children's literature programme with the launch of a Baby Book Club to connect new parents with the Bluecoat, as well as Tales in the Tipi, monthly storytelling sessions linked to our exhibitions. Explore, our programme of family activities, is also extending into the galleries with an array of trails, games and more, to spark the curiosity of our younger visitors.

Everyone in Liverpool has a Bluecoat story, and at this Autumn's Heritage Weekend we will invite you to share your memories as we prepare for the building's 300th anniversary in 2017.

We are also delighted to welcome literary master Colm Tóibín, acclaimed writer lain Sinclair talking about Malcolm Lowry, eminent Irish poet Paul Durcan and the return of Liverpool-based artist Philip Jeck, kindly supported by the Granada Foundation.

I hope to see you this Autumn.

Liverpool Biennial 2014: The UK Biennial of Contemporary Art

A Needle Walks into a Haystack

Until Sun 26 Oct Open daily 10am - 6pm. Free

A Needle Walks into a Haystack is the Biennial's exhibition of international art that unfolds across Liverpool's public spaces and galleries. Curated by Mai Abu ElDahab and Anthony Huberman, it disrupts the way we assume our habits, and experience our habitats.

The Bluecoat presents a single artist, American painter James McNeill Whistler (1834-1903). Through paintings, prints, drawings, sound, ephemera and key correspondences, this exhibition, the first of its kind in the UK, explores elements of Whistler's practice and life that position him as the 'original' contemporary artist, in a reflection of how artists operate today.

A flamboyant public figure, he deliberately constructed the conditions with which to present and distribute his art. He not only paved the road for abstract painting and advocated 'art for art's sake', but also assumed a public persona that challenged art communities, theories, critics and conventions.

Whistler actively engaged in debate around the value and role of art and artists, as exemplified in his 'Ten O'Clock Lecture' and numerous legal entanglements, and re-worked criticism to his own benefit, often publishing his worst reviews together with his own clever and scornful retorts. The exhibition unfolds these stories and provides a close examination of the artist and his tumultuous relationships, particularly with his patron F. R. Leyland, resident of Speke Hall, Liverpool.

The 8th Liverpool Biennial Exhibition, A Needle Walks into a Haystack, takes place across the city at public spaces and galleries including the Bluecoat, FACT and Tate Liverpool.

DaDaFest International 2014:Art of the Lived Experiment

8 Nov - 11 Jan Open daily 10am - 6pm. Free

Art of the Lived Experiment addresses the idea that both art and life are in a state of continual change and uncertainty. Both are subject to flux and transformation.

Exhibiting artists: Katherine Araniello, Bobby Baker, Anna Berndtson, Brian Catling, Ellie Collins, Stephen Cripps, Ellen Friis, Joseph Grigely and Amy Vogel, Tony Heaton, Melanie Jackson and Esther Leslie, Floris Kaayk, David Lock, Kate Mahony, Maurice Mbikayi, Sinead and Hugh O'Donnell, Mike Parr, Becky Perriman, Simon Raven, Adam Reynolds, Juliet Robson, Terry Smith, Matthew Thompson, The Vacuum Cleaner, Aaron Williamson

In contrast to the objectivity of modern science, the ancient practice of alchemy - turning base metals into gold - believed that the presence of the experimenter was integral to the experiment itself. In contemporary art, can the artist's own subjectivity be incorporated, like the alchemist's, into their work in new, experimental and challenging ways?

The artists in this exhibition address this question, not through the fixed certainties of autobiography or illustration, but by acknowledging that the unfixed, mutable nature of existence demands constant adjustment and experiment.

Curated by artist Aaron Williamson for DaDaFest International 2014 (see page 5) the exhibition brings together a range of artworks, including sculpture, video, painting, drawing, photography, ceramics and performance by UK and international artists, several showing for the first time in this country. Process-based and performative work is strongly featured, and includes Brian Catling's durational performance in the gallery during the exhibition's opening week.

An introductory 'Ignition Room' presents an eclectic range of historical ephemera that illuminates the exhibition's themes and includes an acoustic chair, a gold disc and hearing aid as worn by singer Johnnie Ray, and material relating to Goya, Kafka, Isaac Newton, Sarah Bernhardt, Jack Smith and Yves Klein. The exhibition is accompanied by a fully illustrated publication.
